Council Meeting

The Common Council for the Town of Wrangell, held their regular meeting at the City Hall last Thursday evening with the following members present: McCormack, Worden, Case, Matheson, Nelson and Wheeler.
The regular routine of business was carried through and the most important matter to come before the council was in the form of a petition signed by C. H. Borch, J. Ronneng, J. E. Ensley and Chas Nelson, requesting permission to lay at their own expense and under the guidance and to the satisfaction of the Water Supervisor, a pipe line from the Front Street main to Church Street, crossing near the residence of Wm. Lewis, and to take their pay in water receipts at the regular rate for water service. The Council moved that the proposition be accepted provided the right of way for the pipe line across intervening property could be secured.

No further matters were brought up so the meeting was adjourned.

Hard Times Ball

The Hard Times Ball given by the Band Boys last Friday evening was well attended. There was a scarcity of "hard times" representatives, however, which probably can be layed either to its coming so close upon the heels of the previous masked ball or the fact that Wrangell has only "good times" to draw inspirations from.

Building Started At Point Ward

Modern Two line Cannery Will Be Ready For The Spring Fishing

Since returning from Seattle, W. D. Grant has been busy getting men and supplies together and work on the new cannery at Point Ward will begin at once. At a meeting of the stockholders of the Point Ward Packing Company it decided that a strictly modern, two-line cannery of thirty thousand per day capacity will be built and ready for operation next spring.
800,000 feet of lumber has been ordered at the Wrangell sawmill and the Steamer Hope will soon be in commission for transporting the lumber to the cannery site. In the construction of the buildings local carpenters and helpers will be hired as much as possible.
Point Ward was chosen as the cannery site after a through exploration during the past summer by the parties interested in the project.
The promoters of the Point Ward Packing Company are: F. H. Madden, Chicago, President; S. R. Hanley, Medford, Oregon; J. F. Maloney, Juneau, Alaska, and W. D. Grant, Wrangell, Superintendent.

Hearing To Be December 15th

Date Set For Hearing of Townsite Case At Ketchikan

W. J. Lewis, special agent of the U. S. Land office, who has been gathering information regarding the Wrangell Townsite Survey, left for Ketchikan Monday on the Humboldt.
The hearing at Ketchikan will be on December 15th. The cause of the Whitfields, who did the surveying will be heard at the that time. The date of the hearing to be given at Wrangell has not been settled.
The U. S. Government assumed the initiative in the case which has been in controversy for years. The Whitfield were offered $3,500. for their work but refused and asked a hearing. This they were granted and a compromise price of $5,000 was offered which was also refused. The case was then appealed to Department of the Interior and former decision sustained. Not being satisfied, a rehearing was asked for and granted.

Whether the rehearing which will be held in Ketchikan, Wrangell and possibly Juneau will settle the matter satisfactorily or not is a question and one which concerns the whole town.

Lonesome Trip

McDonald Bros. gasboat broke her anchor line Tuesday and started off on a lonesome trip toward Dry Straits. Jack Mantel went in search with the Corliss add found the boat stuck on the Stikine Flats and luckily she had recieved no damage during her ramble.

Seas Break Log Boom

Last Sunday, while crossing from Zarembe Island with a boom of logs cut by McDonald Brothers, the sawmill tug, Alaska, had the misfortune to lose several hundred logs when the boom was broken by heavy seas.

Wabash Has New Mate

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wading, of Loring, when Miss Ada Neil, of Liverpool, England and Capt. Fred Stackpole, were united in marriage by Bishop Rowe of Ketchikan, on Thursday, November 30th.
Captain McLaughlin gave the bride away and Mr. and Mrs. Wading were best gentlemen and lady.
After the ceremony a bounteous supper was tendered the happy pair and their friends by Mr. and Mrs. Wading.
Capt. and Mrs Stackpole will remain at the Fortmap Hatchery until their work at that place is finished when they will return to their home in Wrangell.
Master Teddy Wigg, the twelve-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Markus Wigg, died this morning at ten o'clock.

Once upon a time the Sentinel had a real woodpile which could be seen with the naked eye. It will soon be only a fond remembrance however, as some pilfering person has commenced operation on the end opposite the end from which the Sentinel force has been taking the needful splinters. The Sentinel does not know nor care to know who that person is but cannot refrain from making the simple guess that whoever he is he is a very industrious and provident person laboring to make both ends (of the wood pile) meet,

They Insisted on Brevity.
The Spartans were distinguished for the brevity and conciseness of their speech. On one occasion during a terrible famine the inhabitants of an island in the Aegean sea sent an ambassador to Sparta, who made a speech imploring its aid. He had hardly finished before the Spartans sent him back these words, "We did not understand the end of your speech and have forgotten the beginning."

The poor, starving people chose another spokesman and impressed upon him to make his request as brief as possible. He therefore took with him a quantity of sacks, opened one before the assembly and said simply, "It is empty; fill it."

The sack was filled as well as the others, but the chief of the assembly said as he dismissed the ambassador, loaded with meal: "It wasn't necessary to inform us that the sack was empty. We saw it ourselves. Neither was it necessary to request us to fill it. We should have done it on our own account. Be less long winded next time."

SALE OF TIMBER. Ketchikan, Alaska, November 22, 1911. Sealed bids marked outside, "Bid, Timber sale, General Notice Nov. 20 1911, Tongass." And addressed to the Forest Supervisor, Forest Service, Ketchikan, Alaska, will be received up to and including the 30th day of December, 1911, for all the merchantable dead timber, standing or down, and all the live timber, marked or otherwise designated for cutting by the Forest officer, located on an area to be definitely designated by the Forest officer before cutting begins, on the shores of Castle Creek Duncan Canal, Kupreanof Island, and within the Tongass National Forest, Alaska, estimated to be 1,102,000 feet B. M. Sitka spruce and Western hemlock sawtimber. No bid of less than $1.00 per thousand feet B. M. will be considered and a deposit of $200.00 must be sent to C. T. Gardner, Special Fiscal Agent, Forest Service, Ketchikan, Alaska, for each bid submitted to the Supervisor. Timber on valid claims is exempted from sale. The right to reject any and all bids is reserved. For further information and regulations governing sales address Forest Supervisor, Ketchikan, Alaska.

Just What He Wanted.
The superintendent of the capitol and its grounds at Washington was walking along one of the corridors in the house office building one day when a greenhorn congressman, stewing with rage, grabbed him by the sleeve. "What's the matter?" asked the superintendent, observing the man's emotion.

"Matter!" shouted the congressman. "Why, when I went into my office last evening there was a brand new typewriter on the desk. Now it's gone. You've got a lot of thieves around here."

The official walked into the office and without a word lifted the trap cabinet of the desk and brought the typewriter into view.

"Fine!" commented the congressman. "Now, have you got a place like that in here for my use when troublesome constituents knock on the door?" —Washington Star.

Punctuation in Piano Playing.
A joke is going the rounds of the press about the girl whose music teacher wished to compliment her, but of whom he could only say that she played the rests excellently. This is, however, real praise of a sort, for it is not every young student of music who is careful about playing the rests well. Indeed, a great many players seem to forget that the rests are just as much of the piece as is the punctuation in a sentence. Nowadays people do not put in so much punctuation as they used to do, but the pauses in the voice are there just the same and are readily understood by good readers and always regarded. The rests in music are like the pauses in reading that are heeded to give expression to the sentences. If the player slights the rests or extends them too long the whole effect of the musical sentence is spoiled. —Christian Science Monitor.

Feet Versus the Pen.
In speaking of personal recollections of Dion Boucicault, Henry Miller dwells upon his superb skill as a stage director and tells of the following incident, which occurred during his first rehearsal under Boucicault:

"I went to him direct from Augustin Daly's management. Daly coached his players to cross and recross the stage during the progress of the play, with the idea that this continual moving about of the actors created dramatic action. During my first rehearsal I made a 'Daly cross' as I spoke one of my lines.

"Why did you do that?" Boucicault asked in his quaint, quizzical manner.

"I explained that I imagined it would keep the scene moving.

"Thanks, my boy," said Boucicault dryly, "but if I cannot interest the audience with my pen I don't think you can with your feet."

Bulldogs and Bulls.
Bulldog is so called because of his native antipathy to the bull. A thoroughbred bull pup as young as six months the first time he beholds a bull will run at the head, which is his invariable point of attack, and, seizing the horned beast by the lip, tongue or eye, hang on despite every attempt to detach him. The dog will even suffer himself to be killed or dismembered rather than relax his hold. —New York Telegram.

Protest.
"I beg pardon," said the new arrival, "but it seems to me it's excessively warm here."

"Eh! What?" snorted Satan. "Evidently you forget where you are. This place is meant to be warm."

"Quite so, but there's such a thing as overdoing it." —Catholic Standard and Times.

Going Down

The fact that lumber was falling was forcibly brought to the minds of many Wrangell people Monday night when a pile of lumber at the mill yard went through the wharf to the beach. The lumber was all saved so no loss is sustained by the collapse.

Inherent Dread of Cats For Dogs.
The instinctive fear which cats have of dogs is illustrated very amusingly by stroking a dog and then caressing a blind and newborn kitten with the same hand that has touched the dog. At once the kitten will spit and fluff itself up in the most absurd way, distinguishing the smell of the beast which experience for thousands of generations has taught it most to dread.

Faith in the People.
It would surely have been highly dangerous to confide the destinies of the species to Plato or Aristotle, Marcus Aurelius, Shakespeare or Montesquieu. At the very worst moments of the French revolution the fate of the people was in the hands of philosophers of no mean order.—Maurice Maeterlinck in "The Mystery of Justice."

Willing to Tackle It.
The proprietor of a shop was explaining the situation to the applicant for a traveling salesman's position. The late traveler had, he said, got his business all in a tangle, and his successor would find much difficulty in getting order out of chaos. "I don't know who chaos is," put in the new man, "but I'll bet you'll get an order out of him even if I have to hang on to him for a week."

Pretty Forgetful.
"You forgot to get that silk for me?" she asks. "Why, I tied that strip of cloth around your finger this very morning to remind you of it." The husband stares blankly at the strip of cloth and then says: "Well, I'll be jiggered! And here I've been trying all day to remember how I happened to hurt my finger!"—Chicago Post.

Appearances.
A capitalist at a dinner said wittily of a suspected gold mine: "Gold mines are like human beings—they can't be judged by their appearance. You know what Frank R. Stockton used to say about judging by appearances: "Don't trust a man because he carries a silk umbrella—he may have left a cotton one in its place."

A Change of a Letter.
A hotel in Switzerland bore on one of its walls the time honored inscription "Hospes, salve!" ("Welcome, stranger!") After rebuilding the legend had to be restored; but the painter, who must have had some experience as a traveler, made a very slight alteration in one of the words and caused it to read "Hospes; solve!" ("Pay, stranger!")

The Ballot.
Secret voting was exercised by the ancient Greeks and Romans. Ballot boxes were used in electing aldermen in London in 1526. First instance of the employment of the ballot in American elections was in the choice of a pastor by the Salem (Mass.) church on July 20, 1629. In 1634 it began to be used in the elections of governors of Massachusetts.

School Notes

Leona Lindmen, Correspondent

The pupils of the W. P. S. have loaned the Basket Ball goals to the Academy pupils for use in the gymnasium.

Wayne Tucker was absence Monday on account of illness.

Belle Hood of the 4th grade is again in school.

Hannah Choquette, George Churchill and Homer Worden are absence from the primary room on account of illness but we hope to see them back again soon.

Alice Kincaid was absent Monday because of a sore throat.

The Seventh grade hope to see Esther Tervo in school soon.

Monday morning we receive the welcome news that electric lights were to be placed in the school rooms. There seems to be a hitch in the arrangements but we are still hoping.

We thought it a reward for trying to study until four o'clock during the short days, at 2:30 the rooms are so dark that lights would be very acceptable.

The building has received so many needed improvements this year, that we are encouraged to hope for the lights.

Examinations this week.

What It Is That Wins.
A countrywoman remarked to her neighbor during a conversation on their return from market, "How is it, Mary, that you have been married four times and I've never been married at all, and I'm much handsomer than you?" "Aye, to be sure," returned Mary, "but it ain't handsomeness that does it, Sarah. It's the 'come hither' in your eye."

His Suggestion.
A lady told Lord Palmerston that her maid who had been with her to the Isle of Wight objected to go there again because the climate was not embracing enough. "What am I to do with such a woman?" she asked. "You had better take her to the Isle of Man next time," said Lord Palmerston.—London Tit-Bits.

Was One the Other?
A German cobbler and his wife had two dogs, a St. Bernard six months old and a fox terrier three years' old. A friend, calling one day, said to the cobbler, "Those are two fine dogs you have."

"Yes," replied the cobbler, "and de funny bart of it iss de biggest dog is de littlest one." His wife then spoke up and explained: "You must mine husband excuse. He speaks not very goot English. He means de oldest dog is the youngest one."—Housekeeper.

Eager For information.
An American took a friend, an Englishman, to a theater. An actor in the farce, about to do the dying act, exclaimed, "Please, dear wife, don't bury me in Yonkers!"

The Englishman turned to his friend and said, "I say, old chap, what are Yonkers?"—Everybody's.

Pumice Stones.
Pumice is an acid volcanic rock, which may be in either massive of finely comminuted form. It owes its peculiar porous, vesicular or pumiceous condition to the rapid expansion of included moisture or gases, due to sudden release of pressure at the time of its ejection from the volcano. This expansion may be carried to such an extent that the rock is completely shattered, and the resultant finely powdered material may be carried to unknown distances by wind and air currents and then deposited in beds several feet thick.

Precocious.
 "How far back can you remember?"
 "I can remember learning to spell cat." I was only three."
 "Pshaw! Why, my first memory is writing a letter to a correspondence school for lessons in walking."—Toledo Blade.

A Foiled Ambition.
 "That boy of Joggins' started out very ambitiously. When his father wanted him to settle down to steady work he said he meant to do things
 in breaking records."
 "Well, did he keep up a breaking pace?"
 "Rather. He broke his father, then he broke into a bank, and now he's breaking stones."—Baltimore American.

Eskimo Mourning Customs.
 All Eskimos are superstitious about death, and, although they hold festivals in memory of departed friends,
 they will usually carry a dying person to some abandoned hut, there to drag out his remaining days without food, medicine, water or attendance. After the death of a husband or a wife the survivor cuts the front hair short and fasts for twenty-five days.

EXCESS.
 Too much noise deafens us; too much light blinds us; too great a distance or too much of proximity equally prevents us from being able to see; too long and too short a discourse obscures our knowledge of a subject; too much of truth stuns us.—Pascal.
